

McCoy still tight-knit with tiny high school home (AP via Yahoo! Sports)

Contributed by Webmaster
Monday, 04 January 2010
Last Updated Monday, 04 January 2010

More info...

They call this McCoy Country -- or TuscolTa, with a Texas Longhorn "T" dropped in for good measure. This tiny West Texas outpost is home to quarterback Colt McCoy. It doesn't matter that he's getting ready to lead his second-ranked Longhorns against No. 1 Alabama for the national title, or that his dad (a coach) moved the family for another job about the same time he left for...

Business in Brief: 1/3/2010 (Traverse City Record-Eagle)

GT Industries buys Smilesaver LLC; Home builders show set for Feb. 27-28; Seminars slated as part of poverty series; Profs examine business of higher ed

Online Home Business

{mos_sb_discuss:2}